I've become known for my love for trees, so it came as a natural part of my character design to want to include a tree aesthetic in Elden Ring. As a frequent min-maxer, I would have trees and hedges in my games since there are a lot of places in which I felt players miss out on extras and hidden content if they didn't have trees. With Elden Ring, the trees are not just mundane or background, but an important part of the play experience. I wanted to make sure that any fights and activities in the game had trees, lending a sense of calm and beauty.

Letterbox 7: Elden Ring A Post-apocalyptic, RPG Made by Kugu Is a change of pace from engaging story-driven RPGs, and instead focuses on exploring, leveling up, and engaging combat. You are free to explore the world by all means, but you may be surprised as the characters become invested in the developing story line. Sprawling over four environments, you'll have a wide range of choices to make as you adventure to discover the secret behind a dark world.

This weekend we're dropping the wraps on an absolutely spectacular, but limited-edition pinball, called The Pinball 2000. It's a pinball machine designed and made by none other than Matt Fiddler, creator of such classics as Rampage and the never-released Sentinel Wars. Aside from just being a pinball masterpiece, it's a limited-edition, numbered machine — only 3,000 will be made. Matt Fiddler's story behind the creation of this pinball machine is most definitely worth a read

New Fantasy Action RPG Sat, 28 Mar 2013 16:41:08 GMTThe developers of the upcoming PS3 JRPG, Tar Stained Blood, have recently announced to IGN that Tar Stained Blood is the “first fantasy action RPG in history”; even though video game critics have never been known to be as voracious in their study of fantasy (go on, say it with me: “The Dark Crystal, Jason,”), I can’t help but think of the cleverly similar naming choice for the new game as a sly wink. The banner art and the game’s official summary/trailer video both throw out echoes of other RPGs, though, and that caught my eye while I watched the above clip. A lush BGM and a mash-up of Final Fantasy and Dragon Quest (Judgment's anachronistic name/note) echos on the video gave me pause, and I wondered

1. Field of the Invention The invention relates to a method for operating a well for producing gas from a hydrocarbon reservoir, the well comprises casing with a perforated production zone and production fluid in said casing flows to the surface through the perforations via perforation tunnels and by filtering from the reservoir through the perforations. 2. Description of the Related Art Fluid flow through the reservoir formation is the driving force for producing oil and gas wells. Where the reservoir is located in or close to an over-pressured zone, the pressure is high enough for the overlying layer to flow into the production well. In the case of wells with a low reservoir pressure, the pressure is insufficient for the overlying layer to flow into the production well. A pressure gradient is needed to accelerate fluid flow from the reservoir to the production well. Such an acceleration effect can be achieved by deviating the production fluid flow, which may be provided for example by perforations in the production casing. Producing such a well for example a conventional well has a perforated production zone connected to the well casing, which is cased to the surface and contains a production fluid. In this known well, perforation tunnels are necessary in order to accelerate the flow of the production fluid from the reservoir and out through the perforations into the production zone. In these perforation tunnels, the production fluid enters and exits perforations. In conventional wells the acceleration of the flow of the production fluid is not always the most efficient way to produce the well, because the production efficiency of a well is improved if the flow through the perforations is high. In some wells the perforation tunnels cause the reservoir pressure in the zone to be perforated to be too low to provide the required fluid flow, so that the well must be shut down. This is often the case where wells are
