The Elden Ring, the first stage in the game's world, is a gigantic continent made up of numerous interlocking regions. The majority of the people who live there rely on the magic of the Elden Ring to sustain their lives, and they make countless decisions while wielding their powers. The people and their nations are active, and citizens live in peace. They are proud and content. Among the lands of the Elden Ring, Tarnished lands lay to the west. This land, also known as the lands of darkness, has lost its way and has fallen to ruin. People have become corrupted by the accumulated wealth in Tarnished, and people's thoughts and actions are based on greed. The league of Elden Lords, which was once the highest authority in the lands, is comprised of the mighty lords who have abandoned the people and are becoming egoistic and corrupt. The militant organization, the Brotherhood of Elden, led by Count Leenes, has also arisen and is wreaking havoc on the nation. While the kingdom of Elden has fallen into ruin, it has caused so much grief that it has become a place where the oppressed may find peace. Players can enter the Lands Between, where the tortured beings of both the Elden Ring and the Tarnished are reborn. What's new in Elden Ring:

Mecha Unit is having a bit of a transformation at the moment, and as such they're seeing a lot of changes!

This was posted on steam community...today. Isn't this worded rather odd? This type of release announcement always sends shivers down my spine anyway.

Improvement to the Mechinery – Active Physiques

The active physique/class system is still around with modifications. The physical strength of a class in addition to a class's resistance can now be changed on the fly. A class's basic stats such as physical power and resistance are saved for your next slot thus limiting the amount of time you want to rest to 1 day.

New Enhancements – HP Recovery

It is common to be half way through a dungeon, backing out because you're low on hp – be sure you're safe before leaving the dungeon. For example, you've freed an elemental dragon. If the elemental hadn't been within a room when you freed it you'd be in big trouble.

The dragon will be only be defeated if 1 damage can be done to the monster. If the HP is low enough its HP will be lowered accordingly. This of course assumes you attack back in the correct direction.

I normally want to be able to view the Stack Exchange sites through a user in Facebook, but the site always redirects me to my 'Live' Stack Exchange account. How can I get the Stack Exchange websites (ie. to stop redirecting me? A: The StackExchange sites generally only have "Live" version of StackExchange.com when they have something open to the public. I assume you are seeing your own profile when you go to the site from Facebook. If you get into a public beta, your friend will get redirected to the live site after the beta has ended. If you are on a public site, your friends will just see the live site if your friends are there. They will see the posts for your site if your friends aren't there.
