Next, use a sharp knife to cut off the base of the kumquats. Gently separate the fruit from the kumquats using a knife or your fingers. Remove the seeds using a paring knife. Let the kumquats sit in a bowl of water for several hours to soften up the skin. Once the kumquats have softened, remove from the bowl. Step 3 Scoop the kumquats with a spoon into a blender or food processor. Next, add the sugar and blend until the mixture is as smooth as possible. This step may take 30 seconds to a minute. Step 4 Pour the mixture into a medium-size bowl. Add the lemon juice and combine until the kumquats are well mixed. Step 5 Spoon the kumquat juice onto a piece of parchment or waxed paper. Once the kumquat juice

Sheet Music Source.Photo: Adriana Souza We're a few days away from the National Football League playoffs, but that doesn't mean football fans can't play fantasy football. The players are starting to cut loose, and before long, they'll be spending more time on the practice field. But before long, everyone will be cracking open the playbook and trying to figure out which teams will make the playoffs and which teams will get left out. Thinking about the playoffs is a good exercise for everyone, because thinking about all the different scenarios that could play out makes you a smarter player. It's a way to tease out the little signals from the coach and players and adjust your strategy accordingly. In a fantasy football sense, it gives you the upper hand on the competition. Here are a few things to watch during the playoffs that will influence which team you can dream on. T

Free fiddle sheet music downloads, easy way to find and download sheet musicÂ .Q: Python Flask/Jinja/HTML I have a Flask app that has a list of contacts (actually it's a database of contacts). The idea is to create an HTML table, with each contact being a row and each field being an "cell". I have the following contact entries in the database. id, firstname,lastname, email Is there a way to render out the firstname with ids of 1 and firstname with ids of 2? My problem is i'm getting lost in how to achieve this. A: Yes, you can use Jinja templates and loops to get the result you want. For a simple example, with a contact/address table, you could put the contact into a list and iterate over that list with a loop, and just print out the firstname of each contact: @app.route('/') def index(): contacts = get_contacts() return render_template('contacts.html', contacts=contacts) @app.route('/contacts') def contacts(): contacts = get_contacts() return render_template('contacts.html', contacts=contacts) @app.route('/contacts/') def contact(id): contact = get_contact(id) return render_template('contacts.html', contacts=contacts, contact=contact) @app.route('/contacts') def index(): return render_template('contacts.html', contacts=get_contacts()) Contacts.html: {% for contact in contacts %} {{ contact.firstname }} {% endfor %} Result: Full link: http
