"The challenges of developing a realistic soccer simulation are massive," said Peter Ridd, Senior Producer on FIFA 22. "We had to make sure the experience felt as close to real life as we could. The FIFA and PES team worked together closely to make sure that each player had the most realistic footwork and touches, as well as the ability to have high-intensity sprints without breaking the flow of the game." Among the key innovations are the new sprinting animations and ball physics, along with the addition of a new player control system with a 4th level of control to replicate the reflexes and instincts of an elite football player. The 4th level of control offers the player increased control over the ball, including more advanced assists. Players are also able to "park" the ball in open space to make it harder to be caught in the back, and are better able to make runs off the ball. Key Features • 4th Level of Control: NEW: Control the ball at a level never seen before in a football game. Your players gain the confidence to take a touch and slip to the ball for a quick through ball. Control of the ball in an open space makes it more difficult for opponents to catch up. • Simulation of player behavior: THE PLAYERS HAVE THE SAME INTENTIONS AS THE REAL PLAYERS. The game rewards players who stick to their game plan and punish those who rush or make plays prematurely. • Better Ball Physics: The new REVOLUTION physics system reflects the true shapes and movements of a ball in mid-air. • Speed and Acceleration at High Intensity: The speed and acceleration profile of players are more in line with real player behavior. High-speed runs no longer decelerate the ball. High-intensity acceleration is present during ground, air and over-the-ball duels. • New Speed and Acceleration: High-acceleration drills, high-intensity sprints and air attacks no longer decelerate the ball. This makes it easier for players to accelerate to the ball quickly, even in open space. • Real Player Durability: Players are more likely to pick up the ball after a tackle, as bruises or strains from a previous tackle are realistically distributed. • Red Card System: The new red card system ensures the best decisions for managers. • Impact System: Players are more likely to get injured when taking a chance and they are more likely to recover from a serious collision.
