Precision of motion-capture motion is also improved, with less "clamping" on movements, for more accurate gameplay. Athletes' actions are modelled in game at an even higher resolution, for more detailed and responsive visuals and more realistic gameplay on a variety of surfaces, from grass to snow and mud. A new "Tablet mode" includes a wider field of view when viewing the game from a variety of angles on a tablet or smartphone. FIFA 22 also features new online content that includes "smart training drills" from the world's top football clubs, new Off the Ball behaviours that make the most of your players' attributes, and FIFA Ultimate Team Champions League which provides a new, high-stakes, online mode to earn tournament-based rewards in addition to high-level rewards for over 80 players and legends. In addition to all of these features, FIFA 22 for PlayStation 4 offers an improved dynamic soundtrack powered by a new 7.1 surround sound audio system and an expanded "Choose Your Play Style" feature that allows players to select from three game-play styles (Classic, Casual and Offensive). "We know from our own research that players look to improve their performance and learn new techniques from watching video content, so we wanted to give them more options in our new 'Choose Your Play Style' feature," said Greg Dyke, Executive Vice President, Chief Marketing Officer and Digital Marketing at EA SPORTS. "We are also constantly listening to fan feedback, which means that we are continuing to invest in these features across all of our platforms, including new content, new features and an enhanced video player." FIFA 22 for PlayStation 4 and Xbox One also brings the new Nintendo Switch™ version of the game. Nintendo Switch comes with 2 controllers, so gameplay on the go has never been better.
