MassPlanner is the ultimate Social media scheduling tool for business.Q: What are the pros and cons of using a password manager? I'm in the market for a password manager, but I don't know what each of the pros and cons are. I have a Google account, so I can use Chrome's built-in password manager, but have a hard time relying on that because for me, it isn't designed to be a replacement for a true password manager. My question is: What are the pros and cons of using a password manager? A: "Pro" Password Managers Can't reuse passwords across sites (e.g. Facebook, LinkedIn) Allows you to learn and remind yourself of passwords; along with 1-click login Keeps your passwords in sync across multiple sites Allows you to control security settings like 'lock me out' if you leave a computer unlocked It's been tested and is battle-tested "Con" Password Managers It's expensive It does not give you the feel of a true password manager; it's just a site that stores your passwords Requires a specific browser (e.g. Chrome, Firefox, Safari) My personal Pro-con list: Pro: Can't reuse passwords across sites (e.g. Facebook, LinkedIn) Allows you to learn and remind yourself of passwords; along with 1-click login Con: Requires a specific browser (e.g. Chrome, Firefox, Safari) A: I use LastPass. It has been a pain to setup as an alternative to my google account, but once it's setup it's amazing. A: If I needed an app that let me use/automate a password manager, I'd use KeePassXC and I do use it.
