The summit, supported by the UN-Habitat in Washington, D.C., focused on how to create and maintain affordable housing. Speakers included three Toronto municipal leaders — Mayor John Tory, Coun. Pam McConnell and Coun. Joe Mihevc — along with the leaders of two other Canadian cities: former Toronto councillor Kim Fransman of Calgary and former Vancouver city councillor George Affleck of Burnaby. A look at some of the key takeaways at the event: Balance means being creative Creating affordability means creativity and understanding of what's possible. "A balanced approach is one that we can't depend upon any longer. This is a game of chess, and our opponents are now at the
