_**NOTE** Photoshop is part of the Creative Suite, which includes Adobe InDesign, Illustrator, Flash, Acrobat, and many other programs. The interface can look intimidating at first, but after you understand how the tools work, it gets easier. To get you started with learning Photoshop, I've outlined the following steps in a learning path. # **Getting Started with Photoshop** The first time you open Photoshop CS5 on a Windows computer, you need to allow Photoshop to install itself on your computer. You do this from within Photoshop. Follow these steps to get started: **1.** Choose File⇒Settings (Windows) or Photoshop⇒Preferences⇒Settings (Mac) to open the Preferences dialog box, as shown in Figure 1-1. **Figure 1-1:** Open the Preferences dialog box. **2.** Click the Photoshop Quick Mode tab. **3.** Select Install from external drive, and then click Install. **4.** The installer completes, and you can exit Photoshop. To use Photoshop, you need to load the software onto a computer. Chapter 2 explains how. ## **Starting Photoshop** The program that comes with a Photoshop disc is the Photoshop Interface, which enables you to create new documents and images. It works like most other word processing programs and allows you to open and edit documents, as well as create new documents. The interface (which I also show in Figure 1-2) is a good introduction to the interface and tools you need to get your work done. The Interface includes the following four main components: • **Photoshop Document:** This is the place where you create your documents. **Figure 1-2:** The Photoshop Interface. **Photoshop workspace:** This workspace enables you to edit your images and documents. The user interface consists of layers, tools, text, and color picker. **Photoshop Properties:** This panel enables you to configure the document, image, and workspace. You can find this in the Photoshop Interface as well as in the Photo Bin at the top of the Library window, which I show in Figure 1-3. **Photoshop Help:** This panel is a web browser that brings up the Photoshop Web pages when you click the Help button. **Figure 1-3:** The Photo Bin provides an image library

This invention relates generally to amusement devices and more particularly to a device for selectively controlling the operation of a rocking vehicle. Rocking vehicles have recently been introduced for young children. These devices generally include a housing on which the vehicle is supported. A mechanism connected to the housing causes the vehicle to rock back and forth while it remains supported on the housing. The rocking vehicle tends to amuse and entertain young children. However, what is missing in the art are means for attaching the housing to furniture or the like, in combination with a mechanism for controlling the rocking operation of the vehicle. It is thus an object of the invention to provide a combination of a housing and a mechanism for controlling the operation of a rocking vehicle. It is another object of the invention to provide a rocking vehicle that is controlled by a mechanism mounted on a movable portion of a furniture housing. It is a further object of the invention to provide a combination of a housing, a mechanism for controlling the operation of a rocking vehicle, and means for attaching the housing to a furniture member.WSn's Brysselse vechter Stijn Crevenna (25) begon zondag acht uur te rijden met zijn Audi A8 voor een asielzoeker en klopte even later met een knal op de Franse colbert. Q: Completely remove all instances of a word in a text file (in Python)? Here's my current code: wordlist = [] with open('/kurz.txt', "r") as f: for line in f: if line.split()[0] == " ": wordlist.append(line.split()[1]) for word in wordlist: remove_word(word) wordlist is a list of the occurrences of the word in the text file. I'd like to remove the word in the file from the list, and then loop through the same wordlist to re-insert it in the file. The remove_word() function simply removes the word by the code below: def remove_word(word): # Read from the file with open("kurz.txt", "r") as f: # Remove word from the file and print the # text if the word is found new_str = f.read().replace(word, "") print(new_str) # Write back to the file f.seek(0) f.truncate() f.write(new_str) This works fine, but only removes the word I'm searching for from each line in the text file. How can I remove the word in the file from the entire list of words? I understand there might be a better way to do this, but I'm trying to get better at Python as I'm still fairly new to it. A: This is a little bit cleaner: >>> with open('kurz.txt', 'r') as f: ... for line in f: ... words = line.split() ... if ' in words[0]: ... print(words
