Last Sunday's 2-0 loss at the hands of the Philadelphia Union presented a reminder of the Philadelphia Union's deepest issue: a shortage of goalscoring options at center forward. Chris Pontius, Daigo Kobayashi, and CJ Sapong joined the ever-growing list of midfield and forward depth chart defenders who have yet to find a way onto the scoresheet for the Union. None of them have cracked double digit goals, with Pontius and Kobayashi both managing 10 goals over the past two seasons. Despite United States U-20 national team center back and new head coach Richie Faherty's suggestions that the Union will be looking for more from these players in 2018, the Union need more than forwards who have eight goals between them. The Union's biggest problem has become scoring from midfield and forward, leaving the margins of the scoring column too narrow for players like Mike Sorber, David Accam, and Peter Vagenas. Here, let's take a look at the Union's midfield and forward depth chart: Harrison Afful/Olalá Adegunle | Asafa Burak | Andre Blake/Yaro Da Tolo | Aaron Jones | Jack Elliott | Richie Leone | Anthony Fontana | C.J. Sapong | Ray Gaddis/Marvin Platten | CJ Sapong/Bryniah Russell/Florian Valot/Joe Woodwork/Kevaughn Frater | Charlie Davies/Jahvon Quinerly/Artur | Tosaint Ricketts/Jahvon Quinerly/Travis Sloan/Joe Bergdahl/Bobby Shuttleworth/John Reque/Ju-Min Lee | Nat Borchers/Zack Steffen | Mark McKenzie Union center backs are listed here with their respective starting price.
