According to Rick Stroud of the Tampa Bay Times, Evans' agent is trying to pry the receiver away from Andrew Davis and Rodney Williams, and with Stevie Johnson already in the fold, Evans is believed to be the biggest fish left on the market. Evans was last year's second-round pick, but did not debut until midseason because of a foot injury that kept him out of practice for c9d1549cdd CraftQ: Determine if a network path is valid I'm using React Native-Droid-Async Package which include the android.net.rtp package. I can send or receive both xmpp and xmls, but I am trying to figure out a way to check a network path for validity. Here's what I mean: xmpp network path: string (usually the information in the compose xml) network expected: string network path: string network expected: string other stream types with invalid network paths: string string When I call isValid(), this will always return false. I've tried doing this, as well as this in the xmpp package, with no luck. I feel like I am missing some key information, but please feel free to advise me. I would really appreciate it. A: Ok. The answer was supplied by the author of the package. I left this as it might be helpful to others. Code like this is problematic: val mPath = mSender.path.toString() val mExpected = mPath.toString() val isValid = if (path is PathValidator) { it.isPathValid(mPath, mExpected, mHandler) } else { false } It can work
