IN CONCLUSION Land of Screens is an experimental, point-and-click adventure game from X-cell Games. In Land of Screens, you play as Holland Lee, a girl who spent her childhood using her only good friend, her phone, to escape the online drama of the real world. As an adult, Holland has turned to her Phone to cope with the loss of her marriage and early career by retreating into a world of imaginations and virtual interactions. When a recent breakup lights Hollands social media ablaze, she hopes to find some breathing room out in the real world, but as plugged-in as everyone is, it seems impossible that she'll ever get a break. In Land of Screens, guide Holland on her new mission to ditch the social media saturation and discover some real-world relationships by enlisting the help of a few new friends, some synthy chiptune jams, and the inimitable chemistry of small children and adorable animals. "Brand New Eyes" Sea Otter Project, 2018 | Caythorpe, United Kingdom

Nell is an incredibly excited researcher at Sea Otter Project. We recently spoke with Nell about her interests, what a normal day looks like and where she gets her inspiration for her art. What is it about the sea that holds you in such fascination? The environment, sea creatures, the water, they're intrinsically different but fascinating things. I remember when I was younger and I would spend hours walking along the coast watching sea life and I really wanted to communicate my interest in the environment in some way, so I started art school and created the company of Sea Otter Project. What is the most entertaining creature you've ever seen? I'm only a budding birder so I'm still new to this, but I think it'd have to be the African ostrich, I think they're hilarious. What is the most difficult creature to study? Definitely the sharks. Something about them is utterly terrifying, they're so big and they move so fast and I can't help but feel like they have a purpose out there. What is the strangest animal you've seen in the wild? I don't really remember the exact sea creatures, but I did see an octopus crawling up the wall of a shellfish farm in the UK, it was really strange and I guess a bit creepy but it gave me the shivers. What is the most surprising animal you've seen

Action Dimension shifters are like a mini-pitcher. Your active fingers hold down a handle which moves a semi-rigid, semi-flexible plate along a shaft in a counter-clockwise or clockwise direction on a set of nuts. In between the plate and the nuts are Q-tips and active fingers which completely surround the plate while being supported at its extreme ends. The Dimension Shifter was introduced in the late 1960's with Simpson products on the market until 1982 when it was completely redesigned.

So here we go, below you have Jimmy from the scene, its time for an interview!

Syntheses and activities of new diarylheptanoid derivatives. A series of diarylheptanoids including aromatic and nonaromatic methoxy groups were synthesized from corresponding hydroxycinnamates in high yields. A bioassay was used to explore the efficacy of the synthesized compounds to inhibit the platelet aggregation induced by thrombin. Only (1E,3Z)-1-hydroxy-2-phenyl-3-propylcinnamaldehyde showed an inhibition rate of 73.3%.
