Francis In the early 1960s Hollywood was a conservative industry. One of the areas that was virtually off limits to the Hollywood film industry was the then "hot" subject of Communism. Any Communist was literally blacklisted from Hollywood employment. The blacklisted were those with any known Communist association. This included attorneys, actors and directors of movies. Some blacklisted, like Dalton Trumbo, would later find their way into the seat of American Presidents. Behind the scenes, however, there was a liberal use of "unnamed sources" on people associated with Communism. The left was using the reverse "witch hunt" approach. So-called "subversives" were being blacklisted. There were even movies made
