while a lot of films in the past decade have had a romantic theme, barfi stands out because it turns love on its head. here we are not talking about love as a feeling; this is about love as a way of life. in this movie, we see love as a challenge in the form of survival and mutual respect for one another. the narrative is about a girl who is an idealist, and the man who remains a warrior. the two of them fall in love against the backdrop of a world that has forgotten its foundations. it is a film about a romantic relationship between an idealist and a warrior, a man and a girl who refuse to allow their social structures to guide their relationship. it is a story about a pair of individuals who are not afraid to lead their own lives despite the best efforts of the world to break them up. the two of them are unafraid to come together despite the odds against them, and it becomes a story of a couple who live in the moment, and live for each other. barfi is one of the very few hindi films where i can see the best element of indian cinema and western film within a single film. it is the finest example of the amalgamation of two cultures. it is a vibrant tale of passion, frustration, struggle, and fear. it explores the risks of relationships between a man and a woman, and a couple which are too idealistic for the rest of the world to understand. at the same time, it retains the essence of cinematic storytelling. and that is the beauty of this film. it tells the story of a love story without falling into the trap of a common love story. it shows us a new face of what love can be. the story is heart-wrenching, heart-warming, and heart-breaking all in one. the film is about a man who is passionate about music, and a woman who is passionate about her art and her destiny. it is a love story that has absolutely no secrets, no dirty tricks, and no hidden agendas. barfi is about two people who find each other, and the journey they embark on to build a home for themselves. it is an epic love story that is shot beautifully, and shows us the best of the indian tradition and the greatest of the western tradition. it is about two individuals who love, respect, and are completely in tune with one another. barfi is about a man who will do anything for his woman, and a woman who will do anything for her man. it is a film about two people who have been taught to hate each other, and two people who have been taught to love each other. it is a love story that will keep you on the edge of your seat, and make you feel the emotions that a film should.

arjuna didn't want to kill innocent people, but he was an expert in warfare. the pandavas, disguised as beggars, entered the court of the kauravas, and defeated them. when the kauravas tried to escape through the gates, the pandavas were waiting for them, and killed them all. the pandavas were now returning to their kingdom, but they decided to keep their identity hidden from the kauravas and their relatives. yudhishtira wanted to take his brothers to the kingdom first, then he and draupadi would return to the kingdom. arjuna volunteered to take his brothers to the kingdom, and also went with them. duryodhana, who hated the pandavas, was suspicious of his nephews. he tried to kill arjuna, who was protected by lord krishna, but was killed by krishna. the film opens with the death of a girl. a film begins with a girl dying. what is this? is it a joke? is it a tragedy? is it real? is it fictional? who is the girl and what is her story? these questions and many more, are answered in a span of two hours in masaan. the film is based on the novel the novel by kiran nagarkar, which was turned into a telugu film called gurantee by p. s. vinod, which won the national award in 1994 and was later remade in hindi as the ishqiya (2005). the film seems to be a story of four girls in an exam. but the question is, what is the story of all of them. what are they hiding? the film is about how the lives of a small town girl, a prostitute, a nanny and a teacher, in a very conservative society, are affected by the sudden change in the life of a girl. the change is because the girl has been raped. the four are connected to this incident in different ways, but the change in their lives and the life of the whole society are interrelated. the film shows how an incident that could have killed the girl and led to the change in the lives of the four women, is trivialized and ignored by the society, leading to the ultimate change in the lives of the four women. the film is an indictment of how the powerful use their power to dominate the powerless. a child is raped and the incident could have been dealt with. but instead of tackling the issue, the society trivializes it. and the powerful get away scot free, even after a major accident in society. it is a story of how violence, sexism, racism and the indulgence in power are interlinked. the film is a brave attempt at making the victim of a crime, a man. the film is the first of its kind where an independent male is the central character. the film is a bold attempt at highlighting the patriarchal society. the film is very disturbing and will make you think. and make you cry. the film is a powerful film. it is a film that must be seen.

watch it to see a different side of society and the society in our country. it is an honest film. it is a human film. it is a film that could have been made in any other country. but, india makes it possible. it should be seen. 5ec8ef588b
