Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. Rome, 2018. 2018 . 39 Global scale of movement . food runs out from time to time. In such situations, not only individual countries, but also entire regions find themselves in a situation of starvation. In 2015, there were about 1 billion people in the world who expected not to have enough food, and they were on the verge of starvation. Last year, the number of such people increased by 50 million people.
But if we take into account only these figures, then this will be a very large figure. Moreover, these numbers could be 10 or even 50 times higher than previously thought.
