On the Layers panel, a Resume command is shown only when you're in a pinned state. But when you're not, you can press L to link the layers, so you can edit the file as many times as you please without creating new file. This can speed up your workflow. If you accidentally create a new file, press L to toggle state and continue. In the Layers panel, a new crop button lets you set a crop box around your active layers that you can use to reduce the file size after you're done. You can also see all the layers in the panel, and not just those visible on your canvas, letting you resize and crop them all at once. Hey folks finally got a chance to play with Photoshop on iPad. Have used it for years but for some reason the touch keyboard works best on the Pro and cs4 apps seem to work faster although I have not done too much with them. The pencil will not work with Photoshop Touch and will not draw. Also my previously purchased files that were downloaded to the iPad show as in the current format and are useless at this time. I did manage to transfer some older files from my computer. I am continuing to work on the iPad to see if I can fix these issues as I am running the iPhone 7 and am starting to get the "not genuine" error messages when connecting to network. Still waiting for a direct connection to the internet. Anyway if this continues I will cancel my subscription. I do like the ideas behind this program although it is still a work in progress with the learning curve. I am wondering how much work may be done on the iPad. The developers do seem to move faster than the Wi-Fin torrents.
