Salman Khan's best entry .Q: Programming Different Layouts for 5 different devices I am doing this for phones, tablets, and desktop. Is there any way to make something like this? Like, I give one layout for phones, another for tablets, and the rest will stay same. Any idea? A: It could be useful to have different folder containing XMLs(By default Android studio works to structure the app) and then have AndroidManifest.xml to tell the device to use that layout. , so it is possible to produce elements that were too small or too difficult to produce. Moreover, the conventionally used synthesizing method has problems in that it is difficult to precisely control the amount of element, and etching solution that is used for element-removal is expensive and hazardous. The conventional etching method also has a problem that it is difficult to control the shape, as a curved metal substrate is used. Moreover, the conventional method requires to prepare an expensive and hazardous etching solution, and also makes the resist flow in the vicinity of the etching solution. To deal with this problem, a development in the photosensitive resist technology has been attempted, but also the standard method of etching metal substrate with the resist being the mask is not modified to suit the development in the photosensitive resist technology. As described above, the methods in the prior art are still insufficient.Guest Did you know that you can request a specific TTY (Telephone communication device) for your jailbroken iPhone, iPad or iPod Touch? This works very well and I've found it to be very useful for situations where you might be having a communication breakdown with a loved one that only sees a generic "Voice" setting. Keep in mind that this does require an updated iOS but the method I'll describe won't break your jailbreak. Also, you will need an Activator to unlock the device for TTY access. Let's begin.
